

AGR Technology

Custom Software Development & more

Website security

What we can offer:

- Remote monitoring of your website to ensure it's always up-to-date
- Automatic backups of your website
- Website firewall security implementation
- Web scraping & bad bot blocking
- Captcha setup for contact forms and login pages (including wordpress captcha)
- Website hardening to safeguard your site from most attacks
- Auditing of your existing website to identify weak points that an attacker could

Search Engine Optimization (SEO)

What we can offer: Search engine optimization is a multi-pronged process that requires attention to detail to different components of your website both onsite and offsite. AGR Technology can conduct a full audit of your website to identify and fix technical errors such as broken links, redirects, badly formatted pages and more to ensure your website complies with web standards and is search engine friendly.

Other aspects we can consult on include internal linking, keyword research, link building such as blogger outreach and more.

Custom Software Development

What we can offer: Sometimes off the shelf solutions are just not right for your specific workload, in this instance having your own customized software solution can be a useful asset to your business. We are able to develop a custom software application for your business to help make your tasks easier or automate specific tasks in your workflow.

Our applications can also be deployed across Windows, Mac and Linux machines and can work with a variety of technologies to suit your operating environment and existing systems you use. With experience in different aspects of the I.T industry and software development you can trust us to help make your vision a reality.

Press Release Distribution

What we can offer: When it comes to getting news about your business out there press releases remain one of the most effective platforms available. AGR Technology is able to take your business information and news you wish to share and broadcast it to hundreds of news websites online helping to spread your message and build your brand.

Using the power of press releases we can help rank your website high in search engines and distribute your business contact information, products and services to dozens of websites to help send relevant traffic your way.